

I need to update everyone with parking instructions. We will still be able to park in the parking terrace that is behind the conference center. There are only 166 parking spaces there. Obviously, not everyone will be able to park there. There is a new parking terrace directly north of the conference center that is also free parking. This is the only other lot where you will not have to pay a fee. It has plenty of room for everyone.

To park behind the conference center you enter at Kiesel Avenue which is a half block west of Washington Blvd.

To park in the new parking terrace you enter it from Grant Avenue which is one block west of Washington Blvd. There is a stairwell in the middle of the parking terrace that will take you down to ground level. There is an oiled path to the south that will take you to the sidewalk directly across from the conference center. You should be able to enter the conference center through the corner doors that are straight across the street or you can go up to Washington Blvd. and come in the front.

The registration desk will be on the bottom floor in the front of the building this year. That is also where the vendors and the continental breakfast will be. See you Thursday.
